

Introducing The Capitol Leader,
Washington's new choice for news on the Hill.

In Print. On the Web. On your TV. Everywhere.

The arrival of The Capitol Leader into the "Beltway" publishing scene immediately following the much-anticipated 2006 midterm elections marks the first new print publishing venture targeting Washington opinion leaders in over a decade.

The Capitol Leader has assembled a solid team of top-notch journalists and editors with strong backgrounds covering Congress, the administration, national politics and lobbying.

We'll publish a paper Tuesday-Thursday when congress is in session and on Tuesdays only when they're in recess.

Allbritton Communications currently operates television stations in seven markets, including WJLA (ABC 7) and NewsChannel 8 in Greater Washington. As part of its expansion into offering more extensive coverage of national politics and policy, The Capitol Leader will launch on November 21st.

With two offices – one directly in between powerhouse television stations WJLA (ABC-7) and NewsChannel 8 and another on Capitol Hill – The Leader will take the coverage of Washington opinion-leaders to the next level.

It's time for a fresh look at the business of Washington.

It's time for The Capitol Leader.
