

What is an On Demand Course?

Mediabistro on demand courses are self-paced learning experiences that include pre-recorded video lessons led by working professionals and experts the media industry. Students can watch the video lessons any time, and some courses include assignments or small projects to help apply the information in practical ways and further their learning.