Among the New Orleans Museum of Art's core values are quality, community, diversity, and education—all of which imbue its collection of more than 40,000 objects with the esprit of the region. NOMA's collection includes the works of Pablo Picasso, Joan Miro, and Edgar Degas, who spent two years painting in a nearby studio. But it's the sculpture garden, which features 60-plus pieces laid out on charming, meandering footpaths, that really brings out the cameras.

Insider Tip: Friday nights, the museum stays open late for "Where Y'art," a spirited program that includes music, workshops, demonstrations, and cocktails.
