

Small businesses

As a small business owner, you clearly need cloud storage. It's essential, yet expensive—so many offsite options add on charges when you require more space. That particularly hurts when you're watching the budget and not extremely eager to be coughing up cash. With Backup That we never bill extra for space. Our revolutionary product mobilizes your multiple email accounts (enabling you to link them together, at no charge to you). You gain boundless capacity—as much room as you need—and your vital documents get backed up to your email.

And like most business owners, though you get tons of attachments, when you need to find them, you need them now. You can't misspend the hour searching through in-boxes or unwieldy mail chains. Our one-of-a-kind Attachment Viewer delivers you from that trouble. It sorts and syncs your attachments (from multiple mailboxes), then organizes them into one accessible viewer. It's like having your own personal assistant. You don't get bogged down, files are at your beck and call, and you're free to concentrate on running your shop.

Of course, leading an organization means efficiency is crucial. When there are documents or reports to be read, you want them seen by as many employees as necessary, as quickly as possible. No doubt you've found yourself stuck in the muck, emailing each and every item, which is not making headway. That's where Backup That's sharing feature steps in: We lift you up from the mire, enabling you to fluently drag and drop documents into designated shared folders, then create groups to share with. It's simple and smooth. Your employees stay in the loop, your business is up to speed. It doesn't get any better than that.
