Surviving In Solar: Go East?

Written by Marsha Johnston

Thursday, 12 March 2009

Borrego Solar, a $60-million solar integrator with strong east and west coast activity, has some advice for fellow solar companies trying to get by in a low- or no-credit economy: Skip residential in favor of commercial and governmental installations...in the east.

A few days after getting a $14-million cash infusion last month, Borrego promptly sold its residential business to Vermont-based groSolar to focus exclusively on those sectors of activity, and primarily in the mid-Atlantic states of New York and New Jersey. The money, says Borrego president Mike Hall, will be used to improve Borrego's low-cost integration solution already partly developed for flat commercial roofs and to further develop its use in other applications.

Though Hall expects California to be the largest market for the next few years, he sees greater opportunity on the Eastern seaboard. "California will still grow, but growth will be larger in other areas. We saw that when we went into Massachusetts, which had incredible growth. Projects are happening in New Jersey and, while it's not perfect, their SREC program has come a long way. It definitely favors larger projects. That is why a lot of ½ mw and megawatt projects are happening," Hall said. He added that the company's choice of commercial and governmental projects is due in part to the Obama Administration's focus on renewable energy. "In 09 we think there will be incredible opportunities created by the administration," he said.

Die Bank von England krise

Die Bank von England hat in dieser Woche als erste große Notenbank mit einer Politik der direkten Ausweitung der Geldmenge (quantitative Lockerung) begonnen. Ihre erste Auktion, in der sie für 2 Milliarden Pfund britische Anleihen (Gilts) von Investoren kaufte, wurde am Markt als voller Erfolg gewertet. So wurden der Bank von England Gilts im Wert von 10,5 Milliarden Pfund offeriert, also weit mehr, als die Notenbank kaufen wollte.

Gleichzeitig sind die Anleiherenditen britischer Staatspapiere seit Ankündigung der Politik der Mengenlockerung um mehr als einen halben Prozentpunkt gefallen - genau diesen Effekt wollte die Bank von England mit ihren Maßnahmen erreichen. Nach der Auktion lag die Rendite zehnjähriger Gilts mit 3,08 Prozent gleichauf mit der Rendite entsprechender Bundesanleihen (3,07 Prozent).

To offer the opportunity for each to like tiffany & Co is a realistic way for its trait and push what is termed originals. Jewelry inspired by Tiffany hopes to copy the style and luxury of Tiffany jewelry as "replicas." The imitation earrings can be produced with silver instead of platinum or it becomes a trend itself.

Hi, We're EnviroWonk

Yeah, OK, we can be the change that we want to see in the world. But unless powerful people in powerful positions want to be that change as well, nothing's going to change.

So now, finally, there's a place where you can go for news and analysis of politics from an environmental perspective.
