

Matt Adams climbs Jesus Wept (5.12 c/d) in Muir Valley.

KENTUCKY

NEW ROUTES SHOOTING UP LIKE KUDZU

THE RED RIVER Gorge, tucked like a fine moonshiner's still in the foothills of eastern Kentucky's Appalachia, is world-renowned for overhanging sport routes. Although the gorge was originally a trad area, in the early 1990s visionaries like Porter Jarrard began zip-ping in bolted lines on the featured sandstone faces, jump-starting a new route bonanza. By the late 1990s, when John Bronaugh's second edition of Red River

Gorge Climbs was published, the Red's tally of trad, sport and mixed routes approached 1,000. ¶ In the years since that first guide, development has continued unabated. Today there are some 1,300 routes. In the southern region of the Red, south of Natural Bridge State Park off Highway 11, the areas most actively being developed are Muir Valley and the Pendergrass-Murray Recreation Preserve.

MUIR VALLEY

Muir Valley is located on 400 acres of private land owned by Rick and Liz Weber. Named after John Muir, the famed naturalist usually associated with Yosemite, this area has been generously opened for public use, including route establishment and bolting. Access is free and, under the Kentucky Recreation Use laws, open to anyone who signs a release form, available online at muirvalley.com. Muir Valley is maintained and developed on a volunteer basis through the organization known as Friends of Muir Valley. In this area there are 12 new walls located in multiple hollows. One such area is the Lower Tantroft Branch Hollow, home to such walls as The Sanctuary, The Indy Wall and The Stadium. The Sanctuary hosts a handful of aesthetically pleasing, upper-grade routes such as Jesus Wept (5.12c/d), which starts off on a steep, pocketed overhang and transitions to a vertical face and technical pocket finish. Just left of Jesus Wept is the eye-catching Triple Sec (5.13a), a pocket line with bouldery sections. Left is Prometheus Unbound (5.13a), another classic that follows a pockety face after pulling steep lower moves.

MILLET

MOUNTAIN BY EXPERIENCE

EACH EXPERIENCE IS UNIQUE

EXPERIENCE > CHRISTIAN TROMMSDORFF > MAKALU > NEPAL

K Jacket | Gore-Tex® XCR 3 layer for unequalled weatherproofness and breathability, Kevlar reinforcements for toughness, Stretch construction for comfort and freedom of movement. 1lb.10oz.

Mygal 35 Pack | Tough, versatile, light weight mountaineering pack. Full front access with a 2-way, waterproof zipper. Fully featured for Ice, Rock and Ski, from daytrip to 2 day technical climbing; Hypalon® in high-wear areas, 35-40 liters, 3lb. 5oz.

Alpinist GTX Boot | Rated at -5° Fahrenheit, Rock-Solid crampon platform, light weight, excellent support for long technically demanding climbs. Gore-Tex® Skintec Duratherm Membrane, leather lining with double tongue, Vibram® sole.

Millet®, Europe's most exciting mountaineering brand, now available at:

Ashland Outdoor

Ashland, OR

Blue Ridge Mountain Sports

Charlottesville, VA

Virginia Beach, VA

Glen Allen, VA

Williamsburg, VA

Richmond, VA

Nashville, TN

2 locations in Knoxville, TN

Franklin, TN

Madison, NJ

Princeton, NJ

Greensboro, NC

Bob Smith's Wilderness House

Boston, MA

Marmot Mountain Works

Bellevue, WA

Berkeley, CA

Mountain Edge

Ithaca, NY

Nestor's Warming Hut

Whitehall, PA

Quakertown, PA

Neptune Mountaineering

Boulder, CO

Paragon Sporting Goods

New York, NY

Phillip Gall's

Lexington, KY

Snow Country

Rochester, NY

Sugarloaf Ski Shop

Sugarloaf, ME

Trailblazer

Guilford, CT

New Haven, CT

Mohegan Sun Casino, CT

Ute Mountaineer

Aspen, CO

Whole Earth Provision Co.

Dallas, TX

Austin, TX

San Antonio, TX

More info at milletusa.com

Blake Bowling finds
All that Glitters
(5.12c) is in Sore
Heel Hollow.

Just around the corner is the uncharacteristically vertical Indy Wall, brimming with sub-40-foot, four- and five-star routes such as Makin' Bacon (5.10d), The Happy Fisherman (5.11c), Annie the Annihilator (5.10c) and Stretcherous (5.12b). The nearby Stadium hosts good mixed routes. Be sure to do Trad-isfaction, a five-star 5.10a trad line that follows a chimney to a pumpy dihedral.

PENDERGRASS-MURRAY RECREATION PRESERVE

The Pendergrass-Murray Recreation Preserve (PMRP) comprises the southern region of the Red, and is owned and maintained by the non-profit Red River Gorge Climbers' Coalition (RRGCC). On January 20, 2004, the RRGCC purchased the 700-acres—now containing over 150 routes—from the Pendergrass-Murray family. According to the new guidebook, this was the “largest direct land acquisition ever made by climbers.” The preserve is maintained and developed by private donations and volunteers, which cover the yearly expenses of roughly $30,000. Access is free and open to the public as long as you sign a waiver, found at parking-lot kiosks or online at rrgcc.org.

Many of the already established areas—Dark Side, Solar Collector, Gold Coast, the Motherlode and Drive By—are included in this acreage. However, the newest addition, the Sore Heel Region, mostly pioneered by the late John Bronaugh, is located here as well. Within Sore Heel Hollow, there are seven walls: the Volunteer Wall, The Playground, The Gallery, Shady Grove, The Purgatory, Left Field and The Chica Bonita Wall. Bronaugh, before his death in August 2004, had planned to have a drill fest, during which volunteers would bolt the many lines he had scoped. A memorial held this past August saw the creation of many new lines in Bronaugh's honor.

Shady Grove is a steep wall that contains such climbs as Citizen Arete, a sustained 5.11b, and False Idol and Irreverent, both excellent 90-foot routes in the 5.12c range. Routes in The Gallery include a five-star 5.11b, Random Precision, a technical line demanding precision footwork. Mosaic (5.12c), also a stellar route, is nearby as well as All That Glitters (5.12c), a stunning crack with a bolt to start.

BEN L. CASSEL

Down Sore Heel's main trail, past three small bridges and up a hill to the left, you pass through a window arch, a natural door to the large amphitheatre of The Purgatory. Although this wall is in its early stages of development, there are already a slew of routes hotter than the seventh ring of Dante's hell. Kenny Barker, the main pioneer at Purgatory, had the vision of at least four memorable routes including Believer (5.11b) and Special Boy (5.11c), named after a slow boxer-retriever named Deuce, and the quality 5.11c crack, Fallen Angel. Beyond these routes are four more in a row. The first, Dracula '04 (5.13b), is a technical power climb that tackles a seam system. Beyond Dracula '04 you find a closed 5.14 project, and then the often overlooked climb, The Castle Has Fallen, a 5.13b bolted crack that closes down into a seam. Though casual at the beginning, this route catapults you into a tricky boulder problem at the top, moving, momentarily, onto some adjacent pockets then back into the seam. The last route, Paradise Lost (5.13b), is the gem of the crag: a proud line that works its way up a technical face crossing over the arete to an in-your-face power blast.

BETA: The new guidebook, The Red River Gorge: A Rock-Climbing Guide, by Ray Ellington is now for sale online at rockandice.com or wolverinepublishing.com. For additional info visit muirvalley.com, reddriverclimbing.com or rrgcc.org.

—WHITNEY BOLAND

Tracey Cassel on an unnamed project at the Gallery.

BEN L. CASSEL

Tools for a vertical world

NEW Anodised Rocks 1-14

a new shape, new colours, four new sizes. New Rocks are now thinner and lighter, with tapered side walls and are easier to pick out quicker to place and fit more spots. So if you want to maximise your racks' potential pick the lightest, best new Rocks from the original Rock company.

Available as singles or in two new sets 1 - 8, 9 - 14

NEW Superlight Rocks 1-6

are like a diet for your rack; great bite, less weight. Half as wide but as thick as new Rocks, SLs have a single cable to maximise placement potential and strip weight. Superlights seat superbly and fill the niche between micros and std Rocks, giving any rack a new edge.

Singles or set 1 - 6

An 'Innovative Product Of The Year' Rock and Ice Mag USA Jan 05

Alfie Anderson escapes the UK winter for product testing on the appropriately named 'Turkey Foot Crack' 5.10b, South Platte, Colorado, USA

WILDCOUNTRY the cam company™

www.wildcountry.co.uk